This research result has important practical significance and theoretical value for enriching and improving the ideological and political education in college.

1. Introduction

How to cultivate and guide young people to bravely move forward and face the challenges of social change? The answer lies in the thick soil of Chinese traditional culture. This skill is not only to change teaching methods, but also to tap the essence of Chinese traditional culture. This so-called "Chinese traditional culture" mainly talks about the civilized spirit that can inspire students' patriotism, cultivate socialist dominant notes, and broaden their thinking scope. This innovative way of ideological and political education adopts diversified teaching methods such as on-site teaching, red courses, and multimedia teaching, striving to deeply integrate the essence of Chinese traditional culture and its contemporary value into the ideological and political education, so that they can feel the attraction of Chinese traditional culture and be influenced. This paper will conduct detailed research around this topic, with the aim of providing new academic support and practical reference for the enrichment and progress of ideological and political education in domestic higher education institutions through the introduction of Chinese traditional culture.

2. The Connection Between Chinese Traditional Culture and Ideological and Political Education

Chinese traditional culture refers to the revolutionary culture and construction culture, and it is a cultural form with the theme of revolution, progress and charity<sup>[1]</sup>. Its connotation includes core values such as revolutionary spirit, patriotism, collectivism, and communism. The Chinese traditional culture represents the characteristics and advantages of the socialist spirit with Chinese characteristics.

Ideological and political education refers to cultivating and guiding people's correct ideological concepts, values, and behavioral norms through education, in order to form good ideological and moral character and social morality. Its goal is to cultivate socialist builders and successors, so that people have the ability to govern and organize management, and contribute to the victory of socialist construction and the communist cause. Its task is to inherit and carry forward the innovative theory of the Party, strengthen the study and application of Marxism, and improve the ideological and political quality of young students.

3. The Positive Role of Chinese Traditional Culture in Ideological and Political Education for College Students

3.1 Stimulating the Patriotic Enthusiasm of College Students

In the ideological and political education of college students, Chinese traditional culture can stimulate their patriotism and guide them to be filled with deep emotions and responsibilities towards the motherland.<sup>[2]</sup> For example, through Chinese traditional culture education, college students can understand the arduous process of the Chinese revolution and the heroic figures who fought bravely, inspiring their strong willingness to inherit the red gene and strive for the realization of the Chinese Dream.

3.2 Cultivate Awareness of Socialist Main Theme

Chinese traditional culture represents the main theme of socialism and is an important component of the cause of socialism with Chinese characteristics. Incorporating elements of Chinese traditional culture into ideological and political education for college students can cultivate their awareness of socialist themes. By studying Chinese traditional culture, college students can gain a deeper understanding of the core socialist values, establish correct worldviews, outlooks on life, and values, guide them to actively engage in socialist construction.

3.3 Expand the Ideological Perspective of College Students

Chinese traditional culture, as an important component of the excellent traditional culture, has profound cultural heritage and unique ideological connotations. In the ideological and political education of college students, incorporating elements of Chinese traditional culture can broaden their ideological horizons, improve their cultural literacy and comprehensive quality.<sup>[3]</sup> By studying Chinese traditional culture, college students can gain a deeper understanding of traditional Chinese culture, draw wisdom and strength from it, develop independent thinking abilities, cultivate diverse aesthetic tastes, and improve their ability to solve specific problems. The positive role of Chinese traditional culture in ideological and political education for college students cannot be ignored. In order to deeply explore and play its role, it is necessary to think about and explore some specific paths to integrate Chinese traditional culture.

4. The Path of Integrating Chinese Traditional Culture into Ideological and Political Education

4.1 Integrating On-site Teaching of Chinese Traditional Culture into Ideological and Political Education

The importance of integrating on-site teaching of Chinese traditional culture into ideological and political education cannot be ignored. Field teaching is a teaching method that is based on practical experience, linking theoretical knowledge with real life, and is conducive to expanding students' practical thinking and application abilities. This type of teaching can play a key role in imparting Chinese traditional culture. It can not only help students understand the theoretical connotation of Chinese traditional culture, but also deepen their understanding of the historical background of Chinese traditional culture, enhance their emotional identification with Chinese traditional culture, and thus better strengthen their beliefs and solidify their ideals.<sup>[4]</sup>

Furthermore, on-site teaching is beneficial for students to cultivate practical operational skills and comprehensive qualities. Through on-site teaching, students can comprehensively understand and master the historical and contemporary nature of Chinese traditional culture, further improving their ideological and political qualities. Ideological and political education should widely adopt on-site teaching methods, integrating Chinese traditional culture into teaching as an effective way to enhance the ideological and political qualities of college students.

In order to demonstrate the importance of on-site teaching in ideological and political education, colleges should strengthen the construction and application of red old sites and red bases, and enhance their effectiveness in ideological and political education for college students through further specialized construction and systematic planning. Targeted reforms should be made in textbook design, curriculum design, and evaluation methods to provide more possibilities for on-site teaching. This can not only further promote Chinese traditional culture, but also enhance the practical operation ability and social responsibility of college students.

Overall, on-site teaching of Chinese traditional culture is one of the important ways to vigorously promote ideological and political education in colleges and promote the in-depth implementation of socialist core values among college students.

4.2 Strengthening the Setting and Implementation of Red Courses

Strengthening the design and implementation of “red courses” can be seen as one of the main ways to integrate Chinese traditional culture into ideological and political education for college students. The provision of red courses in colleges is highly coordinated and reasonable in both historical and practical aspects. It presents the theme of the times and meets the requirements of ideological and political education. The Red Course has successfully spread and inherited the Chinese traditional culture by comprehensively revealing the historical trajectory of the primary stage of socialism, providing a detailed introduction to the national revolutionary process and the great achievements of socialist construction. Colleges have a responsibility to continuously enrich and improve the content of red courses to better serve the goals of ideological and political education. So how to further strengthen the design and implementation of red courses? You can try to strengthen the system design of the red course.<sup>[5]</sup> The curriculum should comprehensively, accurately, and vividly reflect the rich connotations of Chinese traditional culture, highlight the unique charm of Chinese traditional culture, and guide college students to consciously love and actively approach Chinese traditional culture. The red curriculum should also pay attention to respecting historical facts, striving to reflect the objectivity and impartiality of history, in order to enhance the authority and persuasiveness of its education.

In addition, colleges should adjust the content structure of red courses and optimize the teaching methods of red courses. The course content structure should be regularly updated to adapt to the rapidly changing social environment and the cognitive needs of college students. The novelty and diversity of course content can be improved mainly by introducing new historical events, updating the interpretation perspectives of historical figures, and using new historical materials. Based on the characteristics of the course content, adopting diversified teaching methods such as discussion, research, and situational approaches can better stimulate the interest of college students in learning red courses and improve teaching effectiveness.

4.3 Using Multimedia Means to Spread Chinese Traditional Culture

Nowadays, it is important to use multimedia means to spread Chinese traditional culture. Colleges can utilize information technology to carry out diverse Chinese traditional culture promotion and dissemination activities. Chinese traditional culture education websites or campus Chinese traditional culture platforms can be built to provide relevant Chinese traditional culture resources and materials, allowing students to access and learn anytime, anywhere. Chinese traditional culture promotional videos can be produced through multimedia forms such as videos and images, and disseminated through online platforms to attract more students to pay attention and participate. Online Chinese traditional culture activities can also be organized, such as Chinese traditional culture knowledge competitions, red quotes recitation competitions, to enhance students' understanding and interest in Chinese traditional culture.

The problem that needs to be noted is that traditional ideological and political education methods, due to their strong theoretical and policy orientation, often cause some college students to have resistance and rejection towards such courses. Chinese traditional culture, with its distinct historical color, can effectively guide students to deeply experience and perceive the process of socialism. This lively and tangible learning approach can greatly enhance students' sense of identification and acceptance of ideological and political education.

5. The Significance and Value of Integrating Chinese Traditional Culture into Ideological and Political Education

5.1 Improvement and Enhancement of Ideological and Political Education

As a unique cultural form reflecting China's revolutionary history and social development, the integration of Chinese traditional culture into ideological and political education is undoubtedly of great significance for improving and enhancing the ideological and political education work. The first and foremost is that the integration of Chinese traditional culture can effectively enhance the richness and vividness of ideological and political courses. Traditional ideological and political courses often focus on theoretical teaching, which can easily lead to students feeling dull and lacking motivation and interest in learning. The red cultural resources are a true portrayal of China's revolutionary history. Integrating them into ideological and political education can make the curriculum content more vivid and specific, and enhance the attractiveness and influence of ideological and political education.

Following closely behind, the introduction of Chinese traditional culture helps to improve the effectiveness of education. The exemplary figures and heroic deeds in the red cultural resources, as well as the noble qualities and spiritual outlook contained therein, are precious educational resources that shape the ideological character of students and enhance their sense of social responsibility. Through real historical contexts, students can experience and perceive the profound connotations of socialist core values, which can be transformed into their inner moral beliefs and behavioral motivation.

The integration of Chinese traditional culture can effectively promote the reform of ideological and political education in colleges. With social progress, ideological and political education also needs to constantly innovate and seek change. Chinese traditional culture is not so much an inheritance of revolutionary tradition as an innovation and development of tradition. Introducing it into ideological and political education can not only help students understand and comprehend the core socialist values, but also lead them to actively enhance their faith in socialism, and inject new vitality into the development of China.

The integration of Chinese traditional culture has a positive promoting effect on the formation of a unique ideological and political education model in colleges. China's revolutionary historical heritage is rich and diverse, including revolutionary sites, revolutionary relics, revolutionary memorial halls, etc. These red resources are important components of world cultural heritage. For different red resources, colleges can combine their own actual situation to carry out distinctive teaching design and practical activities, form their own unique Chinese traditional culture teaching mode, and enhance the depth and breadth of ideological and political education for college students.<sup>[4]</sup>

5.2 Promoting the improvement of Ideological and Moral Qualities of College Students

Chinese traditional culture plays an important role in enhancing the ideological and moral qualities of college students. General education focuses on knowledge literacy in terms of connotation, while Chinese traditional culture education has unique advantages in improving the ideological and moral qualities of college students during the university stage, enabling them to better understand the fundamental principles of patriotism, socialism, and ideal beliefs.

The education of Chinese traditional culture has high value in improving the ideological quality of college students. The strong patriotism and socialist spirit in Chinese traditional culture can enable college students to learn valuable spiritual wealth and inject new energy into their ideological quality. Moreover, the rich historical connotations and exemplary historical figures of Chinese traditional culture can provide college students with a broad perspective on thinking and a deep understanding of the world, thereby improving their ability to explore truth, analyze problems, and solve problems, and further enhancing their ideological quality.

Chinese traditional culture is particularly crucial for enhancing the moral qualities of college students. The many great spiritual qualities contained in Chinese traditional culture, such as the spirit of self dedication to the great cause of the people, the resilience to never give up, and the spirit of justice in bravely fighting for the interests of the people, are all moral qualities that college students need to actively learn and practice.<sup>[5]</sup> The dissemination and practice of these moral values in Chinese traditional culture provide college students with clear guidance and learning goals in their personal moral cultivation process. Furthermore, the application of Chinese traditional culture in ideological and political education for college students can inspire them through its ideological implications, exercise their moral judgment, promote their sense of moral identity, and thus improve their moral quality.

6. Conclusion

This study focuses on the role and integration path of Chinese traditional culture in ideological and political education for college students. Research has found that Chinese traditional culture can enhance the patriotism of college students, promote the main theme, and broaden their thinking. Through on-site teaching, red courses, multimedia teaching, and other methods, the spirit and value of Chinese traditional culture can be integrated into the ideological and political education of college students. This provides new ideas for solving traditional ideological and political education problems. However, the promotion and application of Chinese traditional culture still face issues such as public opinion and resources, which require further research and improvement in the future. Overall, Chinese traditional culture is very important for improving ideological and political education for college students, enhancing teaching effectiveness, and avoiding problems in education.
